Defcad

Does defcad have permission from file creators and pay the file creators since they charge money for said files they host? It seems like to me they are deaf, no customer service or thieves from what I've heard about them.

Most of the files on DEFCAD were posted by the creators themselves, and we regularly secure permission for new files. Regarding creators earning money from files, the short and simple answer is yes; the longer and more complicated answer is that this model of creator support is still being tested and rolled out, and we have a lot of creators on the site, so not all of them are part of this program; those that are, however, can comment themselves on their experience with it, if they would like.

I'll also take this opportunity to note that any creator not currently part of this program, and who would like to be, should message me about it.
